

stiletto

You move through the world with an uber-confident horsey walk and are often found on a city street, hailing a cab while talking on your phone. An intriguing mix of traditional and modern, deep down you believe in the fact that men provide and women look good. At the same time, you embrace your raw female power, stepping out smartly, never afraid to state what you want. You are extremely self-possessed and very much your own woman.

116 / 117

completing the look

You work your shoe into most any look with ease, well aware of its leg-lengthening, streamlining advantages. Try tailored jeans and a customized tee on a weekend day or a vampy, '40s-era, black straight-skirted dress for evening cocktails (emphasizing a tiny bit of the S&M properties inherent in a pair of towering black stilettos). At work, an A-line slim-fitting skirt and matching jacket with slim streamlined lapels and neatly tucked-in blouse work well. Makeup is precise and should include a darker shade of lipstick — either red or violet — worn regardless of season or trend. Hair is immaculately trimmed and often tied back in an elegant ponytail or neatly brushed and is always shiny.

work it, girl

Your natural self-confidence means you'll make a great entertainment executive, performer, owner of a PR firm, or editor in chief at a major fashion magazine. Your shoes establish you as an alpha-female even before you begin to speak. There is no doubt who runs things when you arrive on the scene.

118 / 119

finding a sole mate

Power, elegance, and self-possession. That's really it.

invoking your inner stiletto

Add a red satin ribbon tied in a bow around your neck and see what happens next.

